INVITED LECTURE SERIES – AN IQAC INITIATIVE

Invited Lecture Series 2016-17

The annual Invited Lecture Series at Ramananda Centenary College aims to bring a distinguished scholar from another institution who shares our passion for the integration of research, teaching and learning to the College to speak on an engaging area of research and relevant field of study. Each lecture of Invited Lectures will be on a major field of current research in the subject, and will be instructional in nature, being directed both at undergraduate students and at academicians who wish to learn about a field outside their own research interest.

Invited Lecture Series – Department of English, 22 March 2017

Ramananda Centenary College

Department of English

- Established in 1971-72 when the College was founded, the Department of English has witnessed and participated in attaining the vision and mission of the College from the very beginning.
- Today, the department continues to draw the best out of young minds through a participatory approach to learning. Faculty and students, eager to use technology and digitization wave, use various modes of learning continually – through email groups to share resources, watching films and discussing the role of literature and culture, students have also formed a Whatsapp group to disseminate information and discuss issues and aspects of literary texts. Students are also encouraged to take online quizzes and tests to test their knowledge of literature.
